

Methodist Oversight Tutor

The Queen's Foundation seeks a full-time tutor to join its academic staff as a Methodist Oversight Tutor. The successful candidate will share in the formation of Methodist student presbyters and deacons and the teaching of students across the Foundation.

The teaching subject specialism applicants offer is less important than a commitment to the formation and training of presbyters and deacons for the Methodist Church in Britain in rapidly changing times. We would, however, be especially keen to receive applications from people able to offer experience and knowledge in any of the fields of ethics, inter-faith work, global Christianity or doctrine. Practical experience in ecological matters as these take effect in personal discipleship, and in institutional and church life, would also be an advantage.

Both the Queen's tutorial staff as a whole and the Methodist team itself are diverse membership in ethnicity, gender and theological outlook with both lay and ordained staff.

For further information go to the Queen's Foundation website:
<https://www.queens.ac.uk/about-us/jobs/>

Closing date for applications is 30th September 2024

Interviews are expected to take place on 21st October 2024

Proposed start date for the post is 1st September 2025.