

Being of beings, God of love (StF 490)

(Charles Wesley, adapt. Andrew Brown and Leslie Newton)

Being of beings, God of love, to you our hearts we raise:
your all-sustaining care we know
and gladly sing your praise.

Yours, wholly yours, we long to be:
accept our thanks anew;
made, and restored, and then set free,
we give ourselves to you.

*Spirit of God, come, pour your love,
by grace, into our hearts;
so will we ever live, and move,
and be with Christ in God.*

We turn to you, for all your gifts
fill us with joy and awe;
you give and all your love requires
is that we ask for more.

So now we ask, with open hearts,
embracing all your will;
turn, and revive us, once again,
with all your fullness fill.

*Spirit of God, come, pour your love,
by grace, into our hearts;
and be with Christ in God.*
