

The Methodist Liaison Office

Principles

We assert all humans are made in the image of God and worthy of equal value and dignity. Therefore the Methodist Liaison Office works with all who labour to establish and maintain human rights under international law, and who advocate and inhabit a non-violent approach.

Working within our Wesleyan tradition, we continue to offer, with humility, this principal as a frame of reference for all our partners in the region.

We are committed to working collaboratively and in partnership with Palestinian Christians and the historic churches in the region.

We are committed to communicating to our sponsoring churches the reality on the ground, and in particular the lived experience of Palestinian Christians, to enable informed advocacy. We deplore all forms of prejudice and discrimination, including antisemitism and islamophobia which we guard against and call out when seen and experienced.
